

Sirs

I strongly request that you act to protect those of us who rely on satellite radio. We are willing to pay a great deal of money to use this service and the reason is obvious: it is greatly needed. Since its primary value is to those of us who must routinely be on the road, I ask that you prevent needless restrictions to the service and instead recognize the value it has to its customers. This includes providing such services as traffic and weather information in addition to its normal programming. These services can be filled in no more effective way for those on the road, and satellite services need to be enhanced rather than be made less useful. The satellite broadcasters provide a service which in my opinion, through their hard work, cannot be matched by other broadcast services. They should be rewarded rather than handcuffed.

Thank you
